Visiting Dutch artist shows his works

A Dutch man who has made nine videotapes about the lives of deaf people in the Netherlands visited campus last week and also gave a presentation of three of his videotapes at the Dutch Embassy.

About 25 persons gathered at the Dutch Embassy Jan. 26 to see the works of Rudd Janssen, who worked from 1982 to 1983 for the Dutch Council for the Deaf. During that time, Janssen created visual works—films, videos and graphic designs about deafness and deaf people.

Janssen said his films are not educational works, but rather represent "a way to communicate."

He noted that at the beginning of his project he was both "surprised and disappointed" to learn what the Dutch Council for the Deaf terms "the enormous cultural backwardness of the deaf people in Holland."

The reason for that observation: the strong oral tradition in the Dutch educational system in preference to the use of sign language. "It's changing

Rudd Janssen visited campus recently to show three videotapes he had made about the lives of deaf people in the Netherlands.

now, but before it was thought rude to use your hands while talking," Janssen continued on page 2

Extended faculty session lacks quorum

The extended session of the January collegiate faculty meeting was adjourned just minutes after the Jan. 30 meeting was to begin because a quorum was not present. The faculty needs a quorum of 113 members in order to convene a meeting and conduct business.

Unfinished items on the January agenda will be placed on the February agenda under old business. The next meeting is scheduled for Monday, Feb. 20 unless it is determined that date conflicts with the observation of George Washington's birthday. Faculty members receive written notification of meetings and agendas from Catherine Ingold, chair of the Collegiate faculty.

Following the close of the meeting there was an informal discussion about methods for easing participation in faculty meetings for the 60 faculty members from the Northwest campus. The chair will accept for study proposals on this and other topics. Written proposals must be received 10 days before the scheduled meeting in order to be included on the agenda.

New approach for volunteer placement

For the first time ever, Gallaudet's volunteer program is using a coordinated approach in the placement of volunteers on campus. Seventeen new volunteers completed the orientation program on Feb. 13, the College's first volunteers to participate in this coordinated effort. Lupe Bryant, who is responsible for the development of the volunteer program as a special project in the National Information Center on Deafness, recruited and screened all potential volunteers.

The volunteers were placed in various departments across campus after interviews with their direct supervisors. Bryant was able to match volunteers with possible assignments because she had job descriptions created by the departments requesting the services of a volunteer.

Over the years, volunteers have been working in various units on campus: the Alumni/Public Relations Office, the Development Office, the Kendall Demonstration Elementary School, the National Information Center on Deafness and the Visitors Center. Each unit had recruited its own volunteers.

The new approach centralizes the recruitment and training effort. Bryant believes this approach will better serve both the College and the volunteers. With one office identifying potential volunteers, orienting them to Gallaudet's programs and services, and offering continuing training sessions on deafness, supervising units can focus on the specific job training that will enable volunteers to do their jobs.

In addition, a centralized approach will enable the College to recognize volunteers for their contributions. Bryant already recognizes the important contributions the volunteers make.

"Volunteers are easy to manage because they are self-motivated. The trick is to give them challenging and rewarding experiences. While most of these individuals are willing to help colate, staple, etc., they also want to be challenged. They want to learn and explore in responsible assignments," she said.

At the present, the College has a volunteer corps of 36 persons registered through the NICD. The volunteers work as teachers' aides, office assistants, tour guides, receptionists and information aides. The volunteers include teachers, military personnel, Gallaudet alumni, retired administrators and medical personnel. Asked to make a four-hour-a-week, six-month commitment, some volunteers have surpassed this minimum.

Anyone interested in more information about the volunteer program should contact Lupe Bryant at x5109 (voice and TDD).

Student assaulted

A Gallaudet sophomore was raped in Benson Hall the morning of Sunday, January 29. Her roommate summoned the Gallaudet police immediately after the crime occurred by pulling the fire alarm, and they called the Metropolitan Police.

The student was treated at the College Health Center and at D.C. General Hospital. She returned to campus on the same day and is doing well. Interviews with people near the scene have produced a suspect who is not from Gallaudet. An arrest appears to be imminent as On the Green goes to press, according to one detective on the case.

Lupe Bryant, who is responsible for the development of the volunteer program as a special project in the NICD, talks with two of the College's volunteers—India Tiller, a receptionist in the Visitor's Center, and Reginald Blaxton, a campus tour guide.

Library Bits & Pieces

Library instruction

by C. Burnelle McIntyre-Ray

Most of you are probably aware that the College library offers library instruction through the English and history departments. The English Department has required of its students library instruction since 1979. Later, the History Department reviewed the materials and decided that its students needed the benefits of such a program to help them do research.

During the fall semester, the faculty of the Sociology Department inquired about this program. After reading through all the materials and asking pertinent questions, the Sociology Department, too, decided to require its students to complete the program. Beginning this semester, all students enrolled in Sociology 303 will complete basic library skills. As with the English and history departments, a student need only complete the program once. The testing area has a list of students who have completed part or all of the program since 1975.

In addition to the Sociology Department becoming a part of the library instruction program, other universities and colleges as well as residential schools for the deaf have requested copies of the library skills materials. These institutions review our materials to see how they might be used in helping their students.

Some institutions even decide to adapt the materials. Adapting the material means that the institution must note (somewhere on its materials) that it has used parts or all of the information or format found in the Gallaudet library's instructional materials. This is a great honor for Gallaudet College. Even though an institution may not decide to adapt our materials, we are proud and honored that institutions seek out our specific library instruction materials.

Foreign institutions which have requested/adapted our materials include: the College of the Virgin Islands in St. Croix; the University of Nairobi in Kenya; the University of Puerto Rico, CORA in Ramey, and the University of Regina in Canada. Domestic institutions include: East Central State University in Oklahoma (for use with deaf students); Florida Junior College in Jacksonville; Gannon University in Pennsylvania; the University of Massachusetts in Amherst; Brighton High School in Rochester, N.Y.; the Illinois School for the Deaf in Jacksonville, and the Utah School for the Deaf and Blind in Ogden.

Many of the institutions have congratulated Gallaudet for having produced "such a well-planned, clear program." As you can see, our library skill program is reaching out to other students. Our academic departments realize the need for students to learn and be able to efficiently use the library's resources. We can now share with others who may be beginning to establish a program in library use.

Board of Trustee story correction

An article in the Jan. 30 edition of On The Green erroneously identified Eloise Thornberry as the widow of the Honorable Homer Thornberry.

Homer Thornberry is an honorary member of the Board of Trustees and was elected to that post in 1971 following 15 years as a member of the Board. He is a former congressman from the state of Texas and the son of the late Mary L. Thornberry for whom the College Speech and Hearing Center is named.

Eloise Thornberry is an active Board member and has been on the Board since 1969.

Education program

Applications are being accepted for new project grants under the law-related education program, the U.S. Department of Education announced last week. Applications are due March 25, 1984.

The purpose of these awards is to enhance the understanding of non-lawyers of the law and the legal system. Congress has appropriated $1 million for this program in FY 1984. This program awards grants to state educational agencies, local education agencies and other public and nonprofit institutions.

For further information, contact the Office of Sponsored Research or Rita Ray, Program Officer, Law-Related Education Program, Division of Educational Support, U.S. Department of Education, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW, Washington, DC 20202, 472-7960.

Philip J. Schmitt, a professor in the Education Department, addresses a group of faculty, students, teachers, school administrators and supervisors during a student teaching workshop Jan. 17.

Workshop kicks off student practicum

A student teaching dinner meeting and workshop was held Jan. 17 to kick off the full semester of student teaching practicum for fourth-semester graduate students in the training program.

More than 60 persons gathered in the upper level of the Dining Hall during the meeting/workshop, which was sponsored by the Department of Education Teacher Preparation Program in Education of the Hearing Impaired. In addition to department faculty and students, participants included administrators, supervisors and cooperating teachers from Kendall Demonstration Elementary School, the Model Secondary School for the Deaf, the Maryland Schools for the Deaf at Frederick and Columbia and programs for hearing impaired students in Montgomery, Prince George's and Fairfax counties.

The essential role of school personnel in the training of teachers and the importance of a "team approach" were emphasized in opening remarks by Thomas J. Landers, dean of the School of Education and Human Services, Robert T. Mobley, acting chair of the Department of Education and Philip J. Schmitt, practicum coordinator. Those points were translated into practical suggestions for practicum personnel by a panel of Department of Education faculty, including James Achtzehn, Barbara Bodner-Johnson, Gerilee Gustason, Virginia Heidinger and Marilyn Sass-Lehrer.

Following the presentations, small groups of students and faculty, cooperating teachers and administrators/supervisors zeroed in on formulating specific techniques and materials for assuring student teachers' success in instruction and class management. Results of those discussions were presented to the full assemblage prior to a buffet dinner and the conclusion of the meeting.

Dutch videotape creator visits campus

Because of that prevailing attitude, Janssen stated as one of the goals of his undertaking to "stimulate deaf people to get involved with a medium which obviously is very close to their emotions and possibilities." At present, he noted, there is no Dutch sign language.

His videotapes, all made without the use of scripts to maintain a sense of spontaneity, show the lives of deaf people in Holland. By showing a woman who uses signs to communicate, Janssen said he hoped to show people new methods of communication.

Janssen continues to work with the Dutch Council for the Deaf—now in a voluntary capacity—and has received an assignment from the Artfund of the city of Amsterdam to create a graphic design of the Dutch finger alphabet.

Coming to the United States for two months in December to obtain information on developments in visual and expressive communication of deaf people, Janssen is also promoting the idea of cultural exchange between Dutch and American deaf people. "The difference between people is not so big," he said. "We can learn from each other. The Dutch can bring something with them and also take something home."

Campus office moves

Gallaudet College is an equal opportunity employer-education institution. Programs and services offered by Gallaudet College received substantial financial support from the Department of Education.

President's Office Notes

The budget

Over the past few weeks, the College has been working closely with the Department of Education to prepare the President's budget for fiscal year 1985. As you know, Gallaudet is one of four special institutions receiving funds through the Department. The College follows a regular process of submitting a request to the Department and then follows that request through OMB and Congress. At each step of the process, the College's budget request can be adjusted upwards or downwards.

Throughout January, the College has received several communications regarding the FY 85 budget from the Department of Education which indicated a change in federal priorities. The budget for Gallaudet is divided into three categories: (1) College programs, (2) MSSD, and (3) KDES. The new federal priorities, as mandated by OMB and the Department of Education, would affect the budget as follows if approved by Congress:

- College programs would receive a net increase of $2,690,000 based upon increases of $5,358,000 for rubella-related programs and decreases of $2,668,000 in existing, non-rubella-related programs.
- MSSD would incur a decrease of $6,728,000 to all programs except research, development and demonstration activities.
- KDES would incur a decrease of $3,127,000 to all programs except research, development and demonstration activities.

These new priorities place the College in a difficult position. While Gallaudet receives a net increase in the College programs, it has been directed to no longer use federal funds for continuing education, the extension center and the law center. OMB and the Department of Education have also mandated further cuts to come out of areas not involving basic instruction. The College has thus chosen to reduce the Division of Administration and Business by $750,000 and College Educational Resources by $174,000 as well as place the College Press on a self-supporting basis. Gallaudet has also been put on notice that the part of the budget related to the rubella increase will be withdrawn as rubella-related enrollment levels decline during the second half of the 1980s.

The federal funding priority for MSSD and KDES is more dramatic. The Department of Education has proposed legislation that would require the College to charge the states for the costs of educating students at MSSD or KDES. This would reduce the federal role by 55 percent, or by nearly $10 million of the present combined $18 million budget. Gallaudet has taken the position that the states would choose the less expensive option—sending their children to in-state programs—thereby denying MSSD and KDES access to a representative student body.

The College is calling on and accepting the help of its supporters and friends in promoting the positive contribution of the College and Pre-College programs and bringing to their attention the adverse impact of these changes. Members of Congress, parent groups, state organizations and other groups and individuals have pledged to provide whatever support is necessary to adjust the federal priorities. Discussions are continuing with the Department of Education, and the College will have several opportunities during the next few months to restore funds to the FY 85 budget. You should know that Gallaudet will pursue all of its options to achieve this objective.

I will keep the campus community informed of our progress. It is our hope that we will be successful, and I know that I can count on your support.

Jerry C. Lee
Interim President

Cochlear implant topic of discussion at Kendall meeting

Last December's Gallaudet-sponsored cochlear implant surgery on a local deaf man prompted headlines such as, "Electronic Ear Implant Will Allow Deaf Man to Hear."

That controversial assertion will be discussed in detail at the Kendall Home School Organization (KHSO) meeting Thursday, Feb. 9 at 7:30 p.m. The campus community is invited to attend the panel discussion, which will be held in the school auditorium.

Margery Somers, Diagnostic and Support Services supervisor at KDES, William McFarland, professor of audiology at the College, James Pickett, Sensory and Communication Research director at Gallaudet, and Dr. Kenneth Grundfast, otolaryngologist at Children's Hospital will discuss the surgical procedure and its possible implications for deaf people.

The panel will address the medical considerations of the implant operation, the social issues the procedure might affect, the possible benefits or shortcomings as they relate specifically to deaf children and the particulars of cochlear implant research at Gallaudet.

Mary Ann Meier, KDES audiologist, will moderate the discussion, which will begin after the KHSO regular business meeting.

World Games for the Deaf tryouts set

The United States Committee of the World Games for the Deaf has announced tryout schedules and eligibility rules for athletes interested in competing in the XV World Games for the Deaf to be held in Los Angeles, CA, July 10 through 20, 1985.

The following are the dates and locations for the tryouts:

- Track and Field: June 26 through 30, 1984 at the Texas School for the Deaf and the University of Texas in Austin, TX;
- Swimming and Water Polo: July 11 through 14, 1984 at Lions District 18-D and Emory University in Atlanta, GA;

- Tennis, Women's Basketball and Men's Soccer: July 18 through 21, 1984 at Gallaudet.

Players for the World Games for the Deaf basketball team will be selected by nationwide balloting by the American Athletic Association of the Deaf, according to Bill Simpson, chairman of the U.S. Committee. Badminton, cycling, shooting, table tennis and men and women volleyball candidates will be considered on the basis of documented performances and are invited to request entry forms.

To be eligible for participation in the World Games for the Deaf, candidates must be hearing impaired American citizens. There are no age limits but amateur status is required.

Hearing impaired athletes who wish to compete in the tryouts for the 1985 World Games for the Deaf can obtain entry forms by writing to the United States Committee, AAAD, World Games for the Deaf, P.O. Box 1985 at Gallaudet. The deadline for entry forms is May 1, 1984.

Austin Travel, the official travel agency of the United States team, will coordinate all travel to the tryout sites. The agency is equipped with 800 TTY and Voice Communication. For more information about travel arrangements, call Dick Richar at 800-645-7466 (voice or TTY).

The 13-sport international competition of the World Games for the Deaf is held in Olympics format every four years. The 1985 Summer Games will be the first for deaf athletes to be held in the United States since 1965.

Approximately 41 nations and nearly 2,500 athletes are expected to attend, with the U.S. team alone expected to field a team of 250 athletes, coaches and other officials.

Gallaudet alumnus honored Jan. 14

Art Kruger, a Gallaudet alumnus who made the American Athletic Association of the Deaf (AAAD) what it is today, was honored at a reception Jan. 14 at 'Ole Jim.' More than 150 people attended the reception honoring Kruger for his 50 years of untiring and dedicated service to the AAAD and the World Games for the Deaf. Kruger a 1933 graduate of Gallaudet, attended the reception with his wife, Eva.

Kruger also received praise from President Ronald Reagan, who, in a letter dated Jan. 12, congratulated him for his "innumerable contributions to athletics for the deaf."

The reception at 'Ole Jim' was sponsored by the Diplomat Athletic Association of the Deaf of Washington, D.C. which hosted the First Annual Art and Eva Kruger Basketball Tournament Jan. 13 and 14 at the Gallaudet Field House. "Art Kruger has done so much in making the AAAD what is today," said Hubert Anderson, Jr., president of the Diplomat Athletic Association of the Deaf and coach of its basketball team.

"This is the least we could do in recognizing him for his unselfish devotion in giving deaf athletes an opportunity to compete," Anderson added.

The First Annual Art and Eva Kruger Basketball Tournament was won by a club from Chicago which defeated the Diplomats 93 to 71. Eight teams participated in the tournament.

Computer Services Short Course Offerings, Spring 1984

New procedures

In order to better meet the needs of our users, Computer Services has made some changes in the way short courses are announced and offered.

A serious scheduling problem arises when people register for a class and then do not show up. Everyone who sends in registration forms are considered registered. No confirmation of the registration will be made. If insufficient interest is shown, the class will be cancelled and those who registered will be notified. If more people register for a class than can be accommodated, you will be contacted and a re-run of the class/seminar will be offered. If it becomes necessary for you to cancel your registration, we would ask you to contact Computer Services so that arrangements can be made to fill your spot.

In order to alleviate room scheduling problems, all classes/seminars on Kendall Green will be held in room LE-44 of the Learning Center. Classes will either meet in a Monday, Wednesday, Friday afternoon time slot or a Tuesday, Thursday morning time slot. If there is sufficient demand for the alternate (morning vs. afternoon) slot, we will attempt to offer on additional class/seminar. Seminars and additional topics may also be offered throughout this semester.

Short courses will be announced in On the Green and in the Computer Services Newsletter. On the Green will carry a notice on a regular basis to remind you about the upcoming classes. We will be offering three regular courses as well as a series of seminars on limited topics. The seminars are scheduled for one and one-half hours. The first hour is a presentation followed by a time for additional questions.

We are looking forward to serving you, our user community, this semester. Any questions, comments, suggestions, or scheduling requests should be directed to Linda Carman, Computer Services, HMB-Room 118, at x5615(v) or x5616(TDD).

Bring your questions about micro-computers and software packages. We'll try to provide some answers and suggestions. No prerequisite.

• Apple Demo:

This seminar will demonstrate Visi-Cal, various word processing packages, and some computer assisted instruction (CAI) packages. Come and find out what these packages can do for you. No prerequisite.

• Intro to DEC-Land:

This three-day (four and one-half hour) course will introduce the new computer user to the basic commands needed to interact with the DECsystem-10 computer, various ways to go about finding help, and an explanation of several computer-related terms. If you have no experience in using the DEC-10, the content of this class is a prerequisite to the SOS class and many of the seminars. No prerequisite.

• HMB Tour:

This one-hour tour covers the HMB user room and the HMB computer room. There is a brief description of some special terminals and the major components of the computer system. There is time at the end of the tour for questions. No prerequisite.

• What Can the Computer (DEC-10) Do for You?

After you LOGIN to the computer, what's next? Do you want to write a thesis, keep track of your students' grades, run some statistics, or look for a book in the library? This seminar will let you know what types of packages are available and demonstrate some of them. No prerequisite.

• SOS—Editing:

This three-day (four and one-half hour) course covers the use of the SOS editor to create and edit/modify your own data files and programs. Simple commands make correcting errors easy.

Prerequisites: Intro to DEC-Land.

• Using Tapes #1—General Information

The seminar will cover basic information about the use of tapes—Why should you use tapes? How do you get a tape? How much do they cost? What information is necessary to transport tapes to/from another computer? What are the commands to MOUNT and DISMOUNT tapes? How can you see what's on a tape? Prerequisites: Intro to DEC-Land.

• Using Tapes #2—General Information

The seminar will cover the BACKUP program—how and why to use it and how often. How to get directories of the files on your tape will also be discussed. Prerequisites: Intro to DEC-Land and Using Tapes #1.

• MIC

MIC is a handy way of executing a set of commands that you've put in a file. It runs at the terminal while you are logged in. It is especially useful if you use a sequence of commands frequently. The seminar will show you how to set up and run a MIC file.

Prerequisites: Intro to DEC-Land and SOS.

• Batch Processing

Batch processing is a way to delay processing to begin at some other time, a way of processing your job without tying up your terminal, as well as a way to handle procedures you do repeatedly. This seminar will show you how to set up the appropriate commands in a file and how to handle error processing. Prerequisite: Intro to DEC-Land and SOS.

• SCSS-SPSS Conversational Statistical System

This four day (six-hour) class will show you how you can run various statistics on your data while you sit at your terminal. The class will cover setting up the necessary files and using the different statistics available in the SCSS package.

• Disk Quotas

Have you ever tried to log out and been told "logged-out quota exceeded . . ." This seminar will show you how much space you are allotted, how much space you are using, which files are "safest" to delete, and how to get back "under quota."

• SWITCH.INI

When you log in, would you like to run MAIL automatically? . . . Or set certain command switches that you use all the time for the PRINT or DIR commands, or in SOS or other system programs? If so, this seminar is for you. A SWITCH.INI file is an easy way to automatically set switches the way you prefer them. Prerequisites: Intro to DEC-Land and SOS.

• VT100 Setup

Do you have a VT100 or a VT102 terminal? This seminar will show you how to take advantage of the various options available through the set-up capability. No prerequisite.

The classes along any one line can be taken in any order.
